

One evening a princess decided to organize a party at her castle, and she decided to invite four princes to please her. The princes were called

Pierre, Paul, Jacques and George. The party started at 3pm and would normally end at 8pm. But it was no normal party. George accidentally knocked down the table making Pierre very angry.

But the princess calmed everyone down. The party resumed and as expected Paul and Jacques were in duel against Pierre and George because all four liked the princess. She had started to straighten the table and served the drinks.

Once the drinks were served, they all gathered and discussed news. Once the princess sat at the table, all the princes were ready to speak to her, and began to quarrel to see who would win the princess' s heart. The princess was fed up and decided to leave the castle. During this time the princes continued to fight.

They were knocking over glasses, the clock and the table on the floor. George was on the bed because he had been stabbed in the stomach. The three princes fled and let George to die.