

Living in lockdown

During the lockdown, we must continue our studies so as not to be behind with the curriculum. Working at home, alone, enables you to see studies in a different way than being in normal classes.

Working at home is different during the lockdown because we are all alone doing our exercises and to ask for help to our teachers we must use the Internet to contact them and also to communicate with our friends. Distance learning allows us to use the applications for better use and understand the instructions better than in classes.

The main changes

The main changes are the food, the fatty meals from Fast Food have been replaced by different balanced meals. Obviously, all this is starting to weigh on the mind, even if we are soon to be done with it. At the moment, it's mostly the fact of not seeing my friends that is the problem. I miss them very much.

The teachers

Our learning process is made via distance learning. The teachers send the lessons and exercises with a few explanations, but they are not as complete as the normal lessons in class.

The students

At home most students work on computers. A lot of tools are being used such as Pronote, educational messaging, a pad to exchange our ideas, and other apps to be able to communicate with our teachers.

Those who have an easy access to the Internet and a printer can easily print and save their documents. Thanks to the Internet, we can also communicate with our friends and teachers to ask them questions if we have any.

The work

I continue to do the exercises I am given. I try to feed my curiosity. I don't really have any fears for my studies because I do what I have to do and even if I am not given anything to do, I continue to work on what I hope will be my job later.

Living in lockdown

I work on my tablet or most often on my computer to do the exercises and write the lessons.

I find that working on a computer instead of writing in notebooks is much better because it is faster to write on a computer than on a notebook and we can save lessons and work more easily. But some students don't have a computer and the necessary equipment. So they have more difficulties to communicate with the others.

In the end, when we work at home it has an impact on our work because we cannot follow and understand the classes normally. So we don't learn as if we were in normal classes.

Since we are in lockdown we communicate using educational applications.

The Erasmus+ project

With my group, we will try and do everything to complete successfully our project.

Since I spend less time doing the exercises than before, I have more time to devote to the project and for me. I don't know if this is the case for everyone, but as for me I have the impression that I work more on the project. I do some research, I work with my group and we do whatever it takes to get the project going as if we were in class.

The aftermath

I have the impression that I have a better lifestyle, I eat more balanced food, I sleep better, I wake up early. The problem is really loneliness, because we are without our friends.

In short, I'm looking forward to the end of all this, so that we can have the life we had before the lockdown back.
